116 exhibitors took part in Reigate College's annual Get Ahead Day in February

Spring Term

Welcome to the Spring 2020 edition of On Route, Reigate College's termly newsletter, with this specific edition aimed at prospective students in Year 11 and their parents/carers.

It's been a challenging few weeks for all of us, and now, as we reach April, we are all learning to deal with the day-to-day changes that the COVID-19 pandemic has brought about and weigh up the impact it will have on all of us, in the weeks and months ahead.

Firstly, I would like to put everyone's minds at rest. Given that Year 11s will no longer be sitting GCSE public examinations this summer, there will undoubtedly be students who are worrying about whether they will still have a place at the College in September. Having seen how the grades will be awarded, I believe that this is as fair a process as possible during this unprecedented time. So whether you will be achieving straight grade 9s, grade 4s or somewhere in between, please don't worry, you will still have a place at Reigate College.

Secondly, it's important for all of our new students starting in September to keep working over the next few months, otherwise some new Lower Sixth students might find the jump from GCSEs to A Levels/BTEC Level 3s a difficult mountain to climb at the start of September. With this in mind, the College is developing a series of activities for each subject area, including essential tasks that we are expecting all new students to complete before the College's Choices Day on 25 August 2020. These materials will start to be made available after Easter and we will contact you soon with more information about how to access them.

I am sure you will enjoy reading through the rest of this newsletter, which will give you an insight into what 'normal' College life is like and find out about some of the great success stories from the last few months. I very much look forward to seeing you soon.

Maths Inspiration

Lower Sixth student Ben O'Shea on stage with Hannah Fry

Maths was taken out of the classroom and presented in exciting real-life situations when over 30 A Level Maths students attended a Maths Inspiration lecture at the Phoenix Theatre in London.

The event featured three interactive talks and a lively Q&A session and was hosted by a number of speakers, including 'stand-up Mathematician' Matt Parker and BBC presenter Hannah Fry, who also delivered the 2019 Royal Institution Christmas lectures.

Maths is the most popular A Level choice for Reigate College students, and for good reason – it goes well with every subject and is incredibly highly valued by universities and employers alike.

Insight into Cancer Research

Tally Rivens at the Institute of Cancer Research

Lower Sixth student Tally Rivens attended an interactive open evening at the Institute of Cancer Research's Chelsea labs, where she met ICR researchers in their labs, heard about possible future careers in cancer research and gained some practical scientific skills.

Senior Maths Challenge

On Thursday 16th January, Lower and Upper Sixth A Level Mathematics students were invited to a special presentation for those who had achieved either a Gold, Silver or Bronze certificate in the 2019 Senior Maths Challenge.

The national competition, organised annually by the UK Mathematics Trust, was held back in November and all A Level Mathematics students at the College were invited to take part. Their standard was extremely high this year and between them they achieved three Gold certificates, 24 Silver and 21 Bronze.

Top in College was Riana Islam in the Lower Sixth, who went on to score an outstanding 85 out of a possible 100 marks in the Senior Kangaroo round.

Riana was previously at Oakwood School where she got a 9 in all ten of her GCSEs. She is now studying A Level Maths, Further Maths, Economics and French, as well as a Level 1 Certificate in Latin. After College she would like to do a degree in either Economics or Economics with Maths.

Maths teacher David Neumann praised all the students who took part, saying, "The results reflect the hard work and ability of our mathematicians. They should all be congratulated for their success, and particularly Riana, Emma and Dan, for achieving Gold."

The students achieving certificates are as follows:

Gold:	Riana Islam, Emma Masters, Daniel Selwood
Silver:	Isaac Alexander, Freddy Baker, Kit Barraud, Euan Bell, Ben Bradley, Max Callender, Niamh Chavasse, Rachael Hawthorne, Paddy Henderson, Isobel Herd, Toby Hooper, Dan John, Jack Large, Callum Moore, Jonas Nohturfft, Rachel Perkins, Samantha Price, Alistair Pritchard, Hannah Reader, Ian Roberts, Benjamin Robertson, Owen Steadman, Joshua Young, Sander Wijnen

Top offers

The above students are among the many receiving offers from Russell Group universities

University offers have been streaming in for Upper Sixth students this term, including those on the College's Aspire Programme.

Beginning in the Lower Sixth, the Aspire Programme is designed to support students wishing to apply to the top universities or to highly competitive courses, such as Medicine and Law. Through an additional weekly seminar, students are given targeted advice, support and guidance to help them aim high and then go on to achieve their goals.

The Programme is again proving highly successful this year, with a number of Aspire students receiving four or more offers from Russell Group universities (the UK's 24 leading world-class research-intensive universities), including (from left to right in photo above):

- Michael Hutton, first choice Chemistry with Molecular Physics at Imperial
- Joel Aston, first choice Biochemistry at St Hilda's College, Oxford

Associate Director of Progression Ellen Walkinshaw said, "Over 800 students applied to university this year and it's been great to see so many offers coming in across the board. Some of the courses are incredibly competitive, often with a rigorous interview process, so to be offered a place is a fantastic achievement."

Apprenticeship success

Offers are also coming in for students choosing to do a degree apprenticeship, which allows them to earn a salary and gain experience at the same time as studying. Places on such schemes are highly competitive and the application process can be lengthy, so congratulations go to Eve Wilcox who has been offered an Accountancy degree apprenticeship with the BBC and Hannah Morey who has a place to do a Chartered Manager degree apprenticeship with Nestlé.

Students looking to choose the Apprenticeship route are given targeted advice through a range of College-run and external events (read more on page 7) and through the Upper Sixth tutorial programme.

MVD news

Operating Theatre Live

Students on the MVD pathway who are looking to study Medicine, Veterinary Science or Dentistry at university have had a busy term, with a number of external speakers coming into College to talk about their specialisms, including:

- Dr Jonathan Springett, from St George's Hospital, discussing his work as an Anaesthetist
- Dr Anna Mustill sharing her experiences as a GP
- The team from Operating Theatre Live, offering a day-long immersive experience

Such events are hugely beneficial and Upper Sixth students on the MVD pathway are already seeing offers come in, such as:

- Beth Aldridge: Veterinary Science (Bristol, Surrey and Nottingham)
- Mukunth Kowsik: Medicine (Birmingham)
- Jacob Foulsham: Medicine (Newcastle)
- Manny Chaffe: Medicine (Sheffield)
- Cameron Fowler: Medicine (Leeds)
- Sasha Graham: Medicine (University of East Anglia)
- Holly Davies: Medicine (University of East Anglia)
- Ewan Young: Medicine with a Gateway Year (University of East Anglia)

Film and Media news

BFI success

Congratulations to Emma Ricketts, Amy Wallis, Matthew Hosp and Amy Watt-Pringle who are the latest students to have been offered places on the British Film Institute's Film Academy residential courses.

In the media

A career in the media industry is a popular choice for many students. Here's what two of our former students are doing now:

Emma Paton was at Reigate College between 2005 and 2007 and studied A Level PE, Psychology and Sociology. She went on to do a degree in Sports Science at Loughborough University followed by a Masters in Sports Journalism. She is currently a presenter and reporter for Sky Sports News. As well as presenting in the studio, she can be seen out and about as a roving reporter at sporting events.

Former St Bede's student Dan Noble left Reigate College in 2016 with A Levels in Media Studies, Maths and Music Technology. Having worked his way up through local radio, he is now a presenter with his own show on Absolute Radio.

Reigate Annual Film and Television Awards (the RAFTAs) will be held on Thursday 14th May in the Rispoli Theatre.

Film and Media are increasingly popular subject choices at the College. On Route caught up with Upper Sixth student Xia Gray about why she chose A Level Media Studies and her plans for the future.

On Route: How did you make your A Level choices?

Xia: I wanted to do subjects I'm genuinely interested in, and that work well together. I've always really enjoyed Economics and English Literature, and the Media Studies course sounded excellent. I'm really glad I chose it – it's so well resourced and I've especially loved the creative elements.

On Route: How has the College supported you in your aspirations?

Xia: Being part of the Aspire Programme was incredibly beneficial, especially the tips for my UCAS personal statement, and the opportunity to do an Extended Project Qualification (EPQ).

On Route: What was your EPQ about?

Xia: My essay was entitled "In what ways is media involved in the rise of anti-abortion laws in America, with a particular focus on Ohio?", which overlapped with all three of my A Levels. Being able to talk about the issues in depth certainly helped in my Cambridge interview.

On Route: What are you planning on doing after College?

Xia: I've applied for university courses that join together lots of different subjects I'm interested in, and where I can learn more about the world around me.

On Route: What offers have you received?

Xia: I've been offered a place to study HSPS (Human Social and Political Science) at St Catherine's College, Cambridge, which is my first choice, and I've also had offers from Exeter, Bristol and Swansea, and I'm still waiting to hear from St Andrew's.

Extended Project Qualification – the EPQ

Dominic Terry

At the end of the Lower Sixth, students on the Aspire Programme are invited to do an EPQ as an additional qualification alongside their other subjects. Equivalent to an AS Level, it gives students the opportunity to develop all sorts of skills – most obviously in research and presentation – and so is highly valued by universities and employers.

An EPQ can be on just about anything – the only requirement is that it's something the student is passionate about – and can take the form of a dissertation, field study, performance or artefact, for example. Typically, most students taking the EPQ achieve an A* or A. This year's EPQ students have undertaken a huge range of different topics. For example, budding Software Engineer Dominic Terry designed, constructed and evaluated his own drone:

"My project involved a lot of time management and self-motivation so I had to learn how to be organised and properly structure my research and note-taking. The idea of creating a piece of work from concept to final project seems quite daunting when you start but the satisfaction of completing it was one of the most enjoyable aspects of the project."

For her EPQ, Amy Watt-Pringle wrote, directed and produced 'Documenting Scarlet', a documentary based on the experience and journey of a drag queen in modern society.

"My brother is a young drag queen so this was a very personal topic which made it all the more worthwhile. The project taught me so much about camera work and editing, and I've learnt time management, idea development, organisation and most importantly self-motivation and confidence."

As a result of producing 'Documenting Scarlet', Amy will be taking part in the BFI Film Academy at Pinewood Studios and has been accepted onto the National Film and Television School's two-week residential film course for Cinematography. She also plans to apply for the BAFTA mentorship programme and a Netflix or Warner Bros Apprenticeship.

Many students choose to do an essay-based EPQ, such as future Medic Cameron Fowler who investigated the question: 'Should 3D printed organs be used for transplantation instead of the more traditional method of organ donation?'

He explains how he chose the topic: "During an Aspire lesson last year, we watched a TED talk about 3D printed organs. Having learnt about stem cells in Biology, I was fascinated by how organs could be created in this way. Also, having done work experience in hospitals, I saw patients in desperate need of an organ transplantation and I thought this technique could be a valid alternative to the current method."

Cameron Fowler

Other EPQ projects this year include the creation of an original children's book (Mia Bleach) and a corset made using traditional sewing methods (Alex Davis).

Iceland trip

A Level Geography students had the opportunity to see Iceland's fascinating topography for themselves during their five-day trip over Half Term.

The action-packed visit took in guided tours of Reykjavik, the Golden Circle and South Shore, giving students the opportunity to swim in the Blue Lagoon, see the hot springs and waterfalls, go on a glacier hike, spot seals along the seashore and go on a night-time tour to see the Northern Lights.

Lessons from Auschwitz

Each year, two of Reigate College's Upper Sixth A Level History students are selected for the annual Lessons from Auschwitz project. Congratulations to Isabel Locke and Kit Barraud who were chosen for this year's places.

Isabel Locke at the Book of Names in Auschwitz-Birkenau

Isabel, who plans to study History at university, said of the project: "The experience has helped my understanding of History as it showed me we need to humanise the people of History to make sure they're not marginalised to just statistics – to understand History you need to understand the people in it."

Write here, write now

Budding writers have plenty of opportunities to hone their craft through the College's Activities Programme. For example, Creative Writing Club runs on a Wednesday lunchtime and this term students have covered a range of topics to develop skills in writing short stories, novels, plays, films and poetry, using assorted materials to act as a stimulus. Each student has built up a digital portfolio of writing, extracts from which will be used to produce a College anthology.

Lower Sixth student Stella Gold explains how it's helped her: "Before I started going to Creative Writing I wasn't a very confident writer, but now I'm enjoying branching out into different forms of writing."

Over 20 students are also part of Newsquest's Young Reporters' Scheme, giving them the opportunity to gain valuable work experience in journalism and have their articles published in online newspapers. Here are just some of the recently published articles by College students:

Alyssa Gobin: 'The Creature at Rose Theatre', This is Local London

Louis Walshe: 'City's European Ban', Sutton & Croydon Guardian

Dani Dodman: 'Do We Care About Award Ceremonies Anymore?', Surrey Comet

Izzy Hudson: 'The reality of working in the big city', This is Local London

As part of the scheme, on Friday 28th February, 11 students visited Newsquest Media Group's newsroom in Sutton where they had a mentoring session on one of their articles and were given an overview of the role of an editor and journalist.

Shakespeare inspiration

Students on the College's two A Level English courses (English Literature and English Language & Literature) had a taste of university lectures when three lecturers from the University of Sussex's English Faculty came in to College to speak about the contexts and language of Shakespeare's plays on Monday 9th March. The sessions also included a brief presentation on English degrees and related careers.

Get Ahead Day

Lower Sixth students took a break from lessons on Tuesday 4th February to research their post-College options at the College's annual progression-planning day.

A staggering 116 exhibitors took part in the day from a range of universities, including top Russell Group universities and other specialist providers, employers, local education providers and gap year organisations. As well as the Careers Fair, the College also ran talks by representatives from Portsmouth and Brighton universities and a masterclass with the Barcelona Institute of the Arts.

An additional Get Ahead Day was held on Tuesday 25th February specifically for students on the Intermediate Programme (those doing an extra year at College) to help them think about their next steps. The day included interactive sessions on CV writing, employability skills and social media profiles, other local education providers as well as a talk on Apprenticeships.

The College's Careers team was on hand throughout both days to offer advice and guidance.

Beyond Reigate

The College held two information evenings for parents of Lower Sixth students on Tuesday 28th and Wednesday 29th January explaining how Reigate College supports students with their progression planning, the university application process and student finance, and an overview of apprenticeship options.

National Apprenticeship Week

Reigate College took part in National Apprenticeship Week in February with a series of Meet the Apprentice Events, featuring former Reigate College students, including:

- Mia Hardiman, Paralegal Apprentice at Cripps Pemberton Greenish
- Lucy Goodger, on the Commercial Apprenticeship Scheme at Nestlé
- Lauren Day, doing a Digital Media Degree Apprenticeship at Nestlé
- Nicholas Gill, on the 3D CAD Mechanical Design Apprenticeship Scheme at Thales
- Max Rayner, Architectural Apprentice at WS Planning and Architecture

Our thanks to those from our Alumni community who returned to College to support and inspire current students.

140 students considering doing an Apprenticeship after College also attended the National Apprenticeship Show at Sandown Park on 3rd and 4th March.

Union matters >>

It's been another busy term for the Students' Union. Here's a taste of what they've been involved with:

Wellbeing

2020 kicked off in College with 'New Year New You' lunchtime pop-up events in the Refectory. College staff were on hand to chat with students and raise awareness of this term's activities and events.

I Love Reigate College

During the week before Half Term, the SU hosted a series of I Love Reigate College pop-up events. Featuring candyfloss, the wall of hearts and a chocolate fountain – plus some unforgettable appearances from Larry the Lobster – this was the perfect alternative to Valentine's Day.

Fundraising

Lower Sixth students have been looking at the area of disability in their tutorial programme with a particular focus on raising money for the Guide Dogs. The Upper Sixth tutor groups have been focussing on raising awareness of mental health and fundraising for the Samaritans and the Lucy Rayner Foundation.

Volunteering

Students have been getting involved with a range of local volunteering opportunities this year through the College's links with VARB (Voluntary Action Reigate & Banstead), including roles with local charities LoveWorks, Include and Active Prospects.

Our thanks to Alexi Lewer from Include who came into College on Wednesday 26th February to run a signing workshop.

Coming up

Meet England Football hopeful Libby Bance

Photograph © BHAFC

Like former England player Faye White, MBE, Libby Bance went to Oakwood before coming to Reigate College, and is passionate about Football. She is in the Lower Sixth and plays for Brighton & Hove Albion.

Why did you choose Reigate College?

It has a great reputation and coming here meant I could combine the courses I'm most interested in.

Which subjects are you doing?

I'm studying A Level PE and History along with BTEC Applied Science. I'm really enjoying all three.

How have you found settling in?

The workload is definitely a step up from GCSE so that took a bit of getting used to, but I'm very settled and have loads of friends here.

How did you first get involved with Football?

I joined an after school club when I was in Reception aged four which I carried on with in Junior School. When I was old enough I got involved with Surrey Schools Training, which led on to playing for Surrey County and from there I was scouted by Brighton & Hove Albion. With them I've been through the U13s, U14s and U16s and now I'm in the Development U21s squad.

What do you most enjoy about the sport?

I love being on the pitch and being part of a supportive friendly team. I play in centre mid field so there's always plenty going on.

How do you fit in training/playing with your College work?

The College has been really helpful in arranging my timetable so I have Wednesdays off, and also supported me when I've needed time off for matches. I train three times a week, and sometimes four, in Lancing, so I need to be organised in my studies. I make sure I keep on top of my work by working in my free periods.

What's been your highlight so far?

Playing for Brighton & Hove Albion's First Team has been such an amazing experience – the game we won 5-0 against the London Bees was a definite highlight!

What are your plans for the future?

I'm planning on carrying on with Football and will hopefully get a full-time contract, and maybe even compete for England!

Football inspiration

Reigate College was delighted to welcome former Vice-Chairman of Arsenal and the Football Association, David Dein MBE into College, to speak to A Level PE students about "The Commercial Side of Football and the Phenomenal Success of the Premier League."

David Dein with some of the College's A Level PE students

David was a prime mover when the Premier League was launched in 1992 and he is currently listed as one of the top ten most influential people in the history of the League. He has served on numerous UEFA and FIFA Committees and was an early proponent of women's football as President of the hugely successful Arsenal Ladies Team.

After David's talk, there was a lively question and answer session where he regaled students with more memories, experiences and insights from his hugely successful career in Football.

A Level PE teacher Ian Pizzey summed up the morning as follows: "It was a real honour for staff and students alike and we're so grateful to David for taking the time to come into College to inspire the next generation of sportsmen and women."

Sports Roundup

Netball

Both teams have had some good wins this term, and there have been some excellent individual performances, notably from Alice Welby-Everard (A Team) and Georgia Kruger (B Team).

Basketball

Highlights of the term include the team's 63-60 win in a closely fought match against Esher College and their 64-38 win over John Ruskin College.

Men's Hockey

The team has played really well this term with a particularly great game against Caterham School.

Women's Football

The team, captained by Lara Sandle, has played extremely well this season, making it to the fourth round of the AOC cup knock-out competition, and only just missing out on a spot in the quarter finals. The team has also had a strong presence in the Surrey Sixth Form League and is currently in second place, with only two matches to go.

Men's 1st Team Football

There have been some great results this term; consistently good performances from Dylan Pederson and Jaimie Mander has meant the team remains unbeaten in the League with huge results such as 5-0 away win to Godalming and a 6-0 win at home to Strode College.

Men's 2nd Team Football

The team is currently level on points with Godalming at the top of the League. An important 3-1 win over Godalming has given the team a chance of retaining the League title.

Men's 3rd Team Football

The 3rd Team has had some excellent results this term, particularly their impressive 6-2 win over Esher College, securing their place in the League final on 1st April.

Rugby

The three College Rugby teams (two Men's and one Women's) have had a good term and have been training hard for the 2020 National Schools Tournament at Rosslyn Park due to be played at the end of March.
